The Dynamics of Neoliberal Transformation

Jörg Wiegatz, Giuliano Martiniello, and Elisa Greco (eds)

An exploration of the New Uganda, providing a comprehensive, multi-disciplinary account of one of Africa's most contentious capitalist market societies.

For the last three decades, Uganda has been one of the fastest growing economies in Africa. Globally praised as an African success story and heavily backed by international financial institutions, development agencies and bilateral donors, the country has become an exemplar of reform for those who espouse a neoliberal model of development. The neoliberal policies and the resulting restructuring of the country have been accompanied by narratives of progress, prosperity, and modernisation in the name of development.

But this self-celebratory narrative, which is critiqued by many in Uganda, masks the disruptive social impact of these reforms and silences the complex and persistent crises resulting from neoliberal transformation. Bringing together leading scholars on the country, this collection is a timely contribution to the debate on the New Uganda, which confronts the often sanitized and largely depoliticized accounts of the Museveni government and its proponents.

'An indispensable volume.'
