1. What is BANG?

BANG an acronym for Becoming an New Generation with morals, values and character started in 2017 at Makerere University whose overall goal was to supplement efforts of the university to fulfil her vision of becoming the leading institution for academic excellence and innovation in Africa. Hosted by Makerere University and Family Life Network (FLN), in 2019 the programme received support and has been funded by the Government of Uganda through the Research and Innovation Fund (RIF). The project titled: “Rebuilding the Moral Infrastructure of the Youth in Uganda: Nurturing a New Generation for National Transformation” focused on critical moral values and character that are necessary for academic excellence, social innovations, positive mindset, attitude and behavioral change essential for individual, family, institutional as well as national transformation and was conducted at Makerere University. The BANG project focused on interrogating the moral values, character and ethical conduct necessary for academic excellence, social innovations, positive mindset, attitude and behavioral change essential for national transformation at different levels - individual, family, institutional. The project comprised of two components - research and innovation, with the former focused on evidence generation, while the latter focused on building the capacity of students and staff (mainly lecturers) of Makerere University with relevant skills towards enabling moral values, character and ethical conduct of the youth for national transformation. Research took an action-oriented approach using a mixed methods study approach using the survey and interview methods and tools. The study was premised on the fact that despite the wide lamentations about the youths’ fast deteriorating moral values and character, they are still perceived as the future leader. Therefore, this study sought to explore the possibility of rebuilding the Moral Infrastructure of the Youth in Uganda by Nurturing a new Generation for National Transformation. It focused on the following objectives:

- I. Identify institutions engaged in nurturing and equipping the youth with the right moral character and values in Uganda
- II. Explore existing opportunities for enabling the youth to acquire the right moral character and values.
- III. Identify the prevailing constraints pertaining to nurturing and equipping the youth with the right moral character and values.

BANG aims at contributing towards the accomplishment of the noble cause of the university community starting with students, teaching, non-teaching staff and the entire university community including parents and the surrounding community

The BANG program is therefore one of the models to address the deteriorating moral values and ethical conduct in the nation. It's a holistic and pragmatic nationwide intervention whose overall goal is to rebuild the values, character and moral infrastructure of Uganda's youth based on the proven values and principles of integrity, honesty and personal responsibility.

5. Friday meetings/fellowships

The BANG members meet every Friday to share challenges and testimonies, they learn from each other and sometimes share some drinks and bites.

Time for testimonies include those youth who have faced different challenges of relationships, drugs, alcohol and how they have managed to overcome them.

Testimonies from a BANG alumni

BANG interventions have been very useful for transformation lives of many students as testimonies from some of the participants indicate. One student blogged that “The main problem affecting our families today is disintegration before and after marriage. People are insufficiently prepared for marriage and are even already disintegrated... some very broken. Henceforth the capacity of building a very firm foundation which can sustain a good and happy marriage is minimal or nonexistent. Is our generation really dying out morally? Are we losing hope of a better generation? Yes...some souls have resigned to this but not us! Not us who believe that we can make a difference... not you who is tired of the status quo. It’s time to rise up and take our place in the restoration of family morals and values. It’s time to become a new generation of young people who are focused on introducing principles of TRUTH in all spheres of life including those we call secular.
